

The currencies of the Hebrew town

The Hebrews are an ethnically compatible ancestry to the Phoenicians and the asiriobabilónicos, and his origins, according to the Bible, it is necessary to look for them in the territory of Ur, in Chaldea, region located in the coasts of the gulf Persian and crossed by the Euphrates. This town (whose name it means indeed, people comings across of the river,), after a pilgrimage that lasted several centuries, reached the southern zone of Syria well-known commonly by Palestine, and called by the Jews land of Canaán or
